ACROSS DISTANT ERAS AND MYSTERIES WAITING TO BE UNCOVERED, THE ADVENTURE NEVER ENDS.

THE GLADIAMOUSE

In Rome, in 80 A.D., Emperor Titus is about to inaugurate the Flavian Amphitheatre and asks the gladiator agencies of the city to organize 100 days of games. At the forefront is the award-winning gladiator agency of the Leones Stiltonii, run by the great Torquatus, head of the Stiltonius family. Unfortunately, on the eve of the celebrations, the fierce rival Sellea Rasmause pulls off one of her schemes and snatches away all the gladiators contracted by the Stiltonius agency. To deal with the situation, our heroes have only one option left: step into the arena and become gladiators themselves! And no one will be able to escape this fate, not even Geronimus Stiltonius, Torquatus's not-at-all-muscular nephew...

MYSTERY IN POMPEII

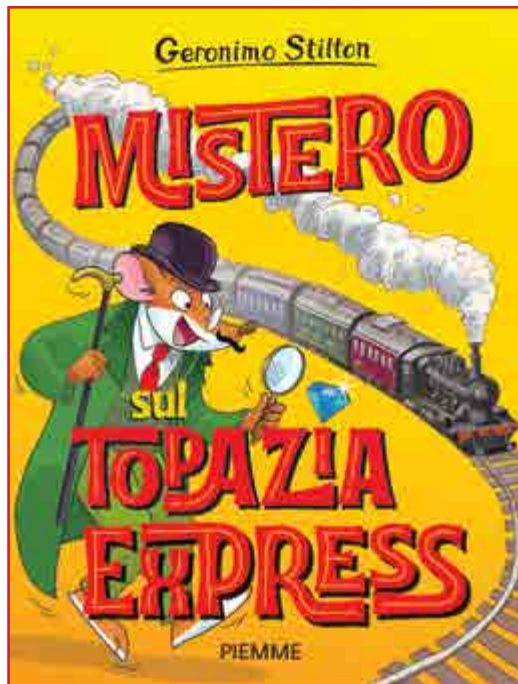

Geronimus Stiltonius is a Roman writer who lives in Pompeii, in the House of the Tragic Poet, with his family and his dog, Sniffer. He devotes himself to writing together with his friend Pliny the Elder, whom he hosts in his home. Pompeii is in turmoil because the gladiatorial games are about to take place: it seems that Emperor Nero, wearing a fur coat and moustache, will be attending and playing his precious zither! But a few days before the games begin, Nero's zither is stolen and Pliny is unjustly accused of the theft... Geronimus launches an investigation to discover the real culprit and clear his friend's name, setting off on an adventure through the streets of ancient Pompeii in all its dazzling beauty.

The inaugural journey is a tribute to the famous mystery writer Mouseagatha Crosty, who set one of her most celebrated novels aboard this very train. The trip begins with a packed schedule of mystery-themed events: everything seems to be going smoothly until Grandpa Torquato suddenly disappears, along with a precious keepsake that once belonged to the writer...

It will be up to Geronimo to help Inspector Topinia Lex shed light on these puzzling disappearances.

As a journalist, Geronimo is more than happy to document the journey, but he has no idea that his investigative skills will soon be put to the test. When a precious jewel that once belonged to the scribe is stolen on board, some believe it is the pharaoh's revenge. But Geronimo isn't convinced and wants to get to the bottom of the mystery. And so begins a whisker-raising investigation, complete with a final twist!

NOTABLE STAND ALONE

THE GREAT ADVENTURE ON MOUSE ISLAND

Everything begins with a mix-up involving two suitcases at Porto Crostolo airport... Geronimo is looking forward to a seaside holiday with Thea and the boys, but instead he finds himself caught up in a race against time to track down a long-lost ancient treasure. He can count on the help of two archaeologist twins, Mita and Kendra Top, and, at the first opportunity, he will board the sailing ship of the mysterious Jolanda Redlocks, a skilled skipper with a decidedly pirate-like air. These and other moves will help him escape the gang of art traffickers hot on his trail, who will stop at nothing to get their paws on the treasure before he does. And as if that weren't enough, our hero will also have to contend with caimans, giant mosquitoes, and mischievous monkeys... Adventure awaits! Squeak!

GERONIMO STILTON AND THE LOST CHRISTMAS TREASURE

It was Christmas Eve, and snow was falling over Mousetown. The city was decorated for the holidays, but Geronimo felt that something was missing. It was as if the true spirit of Christmas had been forgotten... He was wandering through the Christmas markets, looking for the last few gifts, together with Thea and Trap. He had an incredibly long list, and his whiskers were twitching with stress: would he find everything? Lost in these thoughts, he suddenly spotted a stall filled with antique books. A cookbook caught his attention—it was the perfect gift for Aunt Lippa! Little did he know that this very book would lead him all the way to Santa Claus's village. There, a sleigh pulled by a brave reindeer was waiting for him, ready to set off on a magical adventure.

This marks the beginning of a series of fabumouse new adventures for Geronimo, all set in the outer limits of reality.
